FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITOL

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT]

WASHINGTON Feb 28, 1873

The previous weeks of this session have been passed in the mere discharge of routine business and were peculiarly uninteresting to the public. It was only when the Credit Mobilier scandal arose that any opportunity for sensation was afforded Then the press teemed with rumors and contained long columns of reports of the investigation, and there was no lack for excitement The other questions of the day were the contest of electo n cases in Louisiana and other Southern States, and the alleged cases of bribery in connection with Senatorial elections Excepting these cases of scandal, there has been no exciting causes through the winter for there was not a single question to call out an earnest debate or to divide the country on matters of national importance, as involving any leading interest or vital principle of politics

Thursday of the present week was set for the consideration of the resolutions recommended by the committee of which Mr Poland is Chairman, for expelling Oakes Ames and James Brooks from their seats in the House At an early hour the ways to the Capitol were thronged The doors of the gallery were not opened until half an hour before the commencement of the session, and long before that time the corridors were jammed with the assembled people, thousands of whom were ladies. Every one that promises a great debate, enlists their sympathies, for they like to witness gladiatorial displays as well as they did in times when they filled the Roman amphitheatre. When the galleries were filled, they were invited by the House to occupy the standing room in the rear of the members on the floor, and they made a beautiful surrounding for some of the not very elegant gems that were in the center

OAKES AMES

Almost the first inquiry of each observer, was as to the identity of Oakes Ames He sat in the front row on the Republican side of the House, directly to the left of the Speaker He is large built, has irregular and homely features, was once a blacksmith, and looks the blacksmith still. That he is a man of nice moral perceptions his looks do not indicate I have no idea that he has yet got through his head that there was any moral question involved in his effort to give members a property interest in legislation To him business is business, and it was his business to have friends and to keep them friendly to the Union Pacific Railroad Company Ames was evidently nervous and worried, though he tried to laugh whenever he could invent an excuse, but there were times also, when he shed tears and shed them plenteously before the conclusion of the matter was reached Ames is one of the few old men in the House who do not have white hair His face is wrinkled and furrowed, and his form is heavy and ungraceful. It could not be denied that the old man won much sympathy, for was he not self-made? had he not had through a long life a good reputation? and had he not added more substantially than almost any one else to build and complete the Pacific railroad? Ben Butler asserted it, and no one doubted it, and every one felt that his long and useful life deserved to have been honorable to its close.

JAMES BROOKS.

It is well known that Mr. Brooks is in ill health. He was probably feeble before, but the agony of this affair was almost killing him. He sat half way down the middle aisle and had his form bent in a reclining position, with hands folded and eyes closed, no one could have doubted the presence of a corpse. The face and hands were bloodless, and his wan face wore a pallor that showed the situation was wearing his life away No one can doubt that Brooks used his official position to force from the interested parties of the Union Pacific magnificent dividends that took the shape given in the Credit Mobilier profits. He had this stock transferred to his son in law to avoid the appearance of evil, which shows that it so appeared to him. Brooks violated his duty doubly in an official sense, and while the thousands plitted him, and his own associates were not insensible to his good qualities and present sufferings, they could not doubt that he was criminal in fact, and that "justice must be vindicated"

THE ACCUSERS

The Committee of Investigation was composed of more than commonly able men It was appointed by a Democrat and one as impartial as possible in its character Poland and McCrary were Republicans Niblack and Merrick were Democrats and Banks was a Liberal They had investigated for six weeks and their conclusion was that the charges were proved as to Ames and Brooks and were not proved as to Dawes, Kelly Schofield, Bingham and Garfield Poland opened the debate in an able and conclusive speech which lasted for an hour and forty minutes, in which he reviewed the evidence and showed the corrupt action of the two accused Judge Poland spoke forcibly and well. He ably sustained his reputation and dealt plainly with the subject. The policy of the prosecution—if it can be so termed—was to prove that these acts were corrupt and formed a continuing evil, to assert the power of the House to expel any member by a two thirds vote and to be itself the judge of the necessity. The precedents set by the English Commons were quoted to sustain this position This was dry work, but the immense audience of three thousand persons were closely attentive, and was painful still when the clear headed old man summed up the case criminality upon Brooks and Ames

THE DEFENSE

Ben. Butler and Dan Voorhees were the great champions relied on for the defense They did not speak the first day, but the line of argument adopted, was that the precedents of the English Commons were valueless that the House had no right to expel a member for any act committed, as those were, previous to the time of election to the present Congress The statute of limitations was urged, and it was asserted that the people having judged for themselves of a man's qualifications at the time of the election, they had a right to such representation as suited them Those who opposed the report had much to say against the conclusions and sensational clamor raised by "an unlicensed press," and Ben Butler found time to be thankful that he was a man God made, and not the newspapers

THE FIRST DAY.

Following Poland's opening speech, there was read a long essay carefully prepared as the statement of Oakes Ames, which recited the history of the U. P R R and the Credit Mobilier, the efficiency of Oakes Ames in securing the construction of the road, and wound up with a eulogy on his public and private worth, as well as his successful enterprise It was rather enthusiastic in its self praise, but probably the old man's biographical editor forgot the inefficiency of self praise and became eloquent from force of habit

Farnsworth occupied an hour attempting to disprove the positions of the committee, forgetting the great moral principle involved, urging the absence of precedents and denying that the House had jurisdiction over offenses of such old date

The day passed, and the evening was only noticeable from a strong though brief appeal made by Hawley in favor of opposing the corrupt influences of corporations and in defense of the rights of the people.

THE SECOND DAY.

Voorhees had the first hour of the morning debate, and gave twenty minutes of his time to Beck of Kentucky, who worked himself into a profuse perspiration and tore several pensions to tatters

Dan Voorhees is an orator of great power, not of mere grace and gesture, but he has strength and force speaks with colossal purity of style, yet without effort or affectation, and he did and said all that could be said against the resolution to expel, and in favor of the men arraigned as criminals before the bar of the House

The five members of the Committee conducted the case with marked ability,—each made an able speech Merrick—an extreme Democrat from Maryland, and a man of exalted private character and distinguished for legal learning, made one of the most excellent and effective speeches heard in Congress for many a day, and was awarded distinguished consideration therefor Niblack of Indiana, also a Democrat, made an able defense of the report Gen Banks in the same train elected and the House with a stream of music to cel quence that was exalted in tone, and boldly asserted the necessity that the power of great corporations should be checked in the attempted influence legislation While he spoke, Butler near by sat chewing the end of his cigar, glaring at him with his angular bold stare, knowing his own time was coming to reply While he talked, Ames who sat nearer yet, looked up and smiled when the recital was made of his corrupt conduct Banks made a fearful summary of his account, and the old man could not sustain his smile It was a trifle touching, that, while Ames was subjected to such scathing review, one of the pages brought a beautiful bouquet and placed it on his desk There was undoubtedly some woman's aching heart involved in that

Bingham spoke also, and spoke bitterly, and as a man might be expected to speak who was not ashamed of having had all the C M dividends and wanted more who was not even ashamed to denounce the report of the Committee, and only that he was pleased to term its clamor of the mob and the newspapers He has such an appreciation of the rights of a Representative that it is well he is soon to exercise them no more.

BEN BUTLER

In the evening of the second day the long anticipated entertainment was realized, for the crowded galleries listened to the speech of Ben Butler I expected much, but my expectations were exceeded To describe Ben Butler requires more time and space than I can use His appearance is very remarkable, for he fears nothing and cannot be abashed He says what no one else can say, and says it as no one else can say it He is an actor in the grandest use of the term, and during the hour and a half extended him he gave the House law and logic, wit and wisdom, humor and sarcasm in constant relief, at times arousing applause the speaker could not restrain, and dwelling upon the career of Oakes Ames, the blacksmith, with a pathos that made the old shoemaker wear abundantly Ames laughed when ever he could, but during those two days there were many times when he wept because he could not help it.

THE THIRD DAY.

The final fate of the resolutions was not accomplished until the third day, and it was well advanced before the end was reached. It was hoped on to attempt expulsion, because that required a two thirds vote, which could not be had On the third morning Sargent procured the substitution of a resolution in each case, worded that the House "absolutely condemns the conduct" of Ames and Brooks, which passed under the operation of the previous question, by a vote in each case of five to one This was all that could be done, and the language of the resolutions could not have been more severe Had the acts been recently committed there would have been no question as to their expulsion, but the years that have passed since then have somewhat removed the responsibility from the present session. So, at least, many of the members consider.

OTHER CASES.

An effort to censure other members was made and failed, and the probability is that few if any others were to blame to any such extent.

The Senate committee last evening brought in a resolution to expel Senator Patterson of New Hampshire. His case is a pitiful one of deceit and misrepresentation, hardly possible to understand on the hypothesis that he is sane. He has floundered into a mire that will cling to him as an everlasting disgrace.

Vice President Wilson is entirely blameless, except that he didn't tell the whole truth, and it is to be regretted that he did not.

It has been an exciting time, and I have attempted to sketch it as briefly as possible to give it reasonable effect

THE TERRITORIES.

St. Patrick's day will be duly celebrated by the Irish residents of Walla Walla.

Drummers from San Francisco business houses are boring the Walla Walla merchants.

Shipments of cattle and sheep for the Victoria market continue to be made from Olympia.

Hon. H. D O'Bryant, first Mayor of Portland, was in Walla Walla a few days ago looking well and hearty

Burglars have no luck in Olympia They made two unsuccessful raids on business houses there last Monday night

The farmers have formed a club at Waitsburg, W T, for mutual improvement They propose to establish a farmers' library.

The Register of the votes in Olympia has been closed The number of names registered as entitled to vote at the election on the 7th proximo is 567

An alarm of fire was rung in Olympia a few days ago, and the engines were out in good time, to do more harm with water than was done by the flames

The farmers on the Touchet have all their last year's crop of hay on hand They expected a hard winter, and with it a brisk demand for feed, but were disappointed

The accident to Col. J H Milroy of the Chehalis reservation, as reported a few days ago, turns out to be much worse than was first anticipated, and he is now said to be in a precarious condition He sustained a loss of about three quarts of blood

The Olympia Tribune says: "Now that the California has gone into another trade, the Wright lost, and the Telfair occupied on the Alaska route, would it not pay for two, or three, or four of our fine, large, fast Puget Sound schooners to go into the carrying trade between Portland and this region? We merely hint this to their owners."

Ninety eight shares of the 200 in the canal project to bring to the west side of Budd's Inlet at Olympia the water of Black Lake, have been taken by subscription The shares are fixed at $50 each The proposed canal or ditch, it is thought, can be done for the $10,000. The depth will be 8 feet, and width at the top of the ditch 10 feet, and at the bottom 7 feet. An excellent timber country will so be made available, calculated to yield 300,000,000 feet, without speaking of the advantage to the farming country or to the town for manufacturing purposes.

The Tribune of the 10th says "We learn from private and reliable sources that the woman alleged to have gone off with Stone, the absconding Mayor of Seattle, is at Vancouver, and traveled with him from Olympia to Portland only as a fellow passenger, and without the least criminal connection on her part The direct loss by this misconduct is said to be $30,000 or more Family troubles are reported to be the cause of his sudden removal from Seattle The first intimation Mr Burnett had of his partner's act of perfidy was the receipt from Stone at Denver of a dispatch telling him that he (Stone) had all the money, and would use it for his own private purposes, that Seattle would see him no more, and that Burnett was at liberty to fix up the business to suit himself"

The Courier tells the following At the last term of the District Court, at Port Townsend, there was much trouble experienced in the selection of a jury in a certain case. After much trouble a jury was finally empanelled and interrogated by the court, and all were drawn but one, an old Englishman "Are you prejudiced in the case," asked the Judge "No, sir," responded Mr M "Are you acquainted with plaintiff?" "I am," answered the juryman "What kind of a man do you know him to be?" "A perfect gentleman' sir, a regular 'oss, a liberal, big hearted, fine gentleman, your honor" "And are you acquainted with defendant?" "Yes, your honor" "What do you know of him?" "A perfect bilk, a hass, a sneaking puppy, your honor, a ——," here the court cut him short, judging him prejudiced in the case, and not fit to sit on the jury.

The Common Council of Albany are discussing an ordinance providing for keeping chickens from running or flying at large in the city limits.

The first volume of the Oregon Spectator, printed by the late John Fleming, is to be donated to the Pioneer Society of Oregon, according to a provision in the will of the deceased.

Judge Lynch has been administering the law to some rascals at Bozeman, M T, recently. The Heathen Chinee, emulating the example of the Mexican man, also choked off one of their sinners

Mr Dufur had a crowded house at his lecture on the Centennial Exhibition at Albany, last Wednesday Dr Gray, of that place, will address the citizens there on the same subject at an early day.

A monopolist got into jail at Albany the other day, and when they put another common fellow in with him he became highly indignant, and was only prevented from making sausage meat of the latter by the interference of the jailer.

E Cartwright, Esq, of Salem, being on a visit to this city on business, yesterday received a dispatch from his wife, informing him of the death of their adopted daughter Miss Jennie Scott She was a young lady about 18 years of age, and highly esteemed.

In accordance with a petition signed by forty-five persons, Brig Gen M V Brown has issued an order for the organization of a Volunteer Militia Company at Yaquina Bay, Benton county. Dr O M. Carter, of Newton, has been designated to organize and muster in the company.

Hoo-pa-nashilsubulla or "Sitting Bull," a Montana Indian Chief of the Sioux persuasion, was sent to "a warmer climate" by a Peace Commissioner composed of one Bonnist, a half-breed, who made pieces of S. B. with his little butcher knife. The settlers learned of the result with extreme satisfaction.

The Spirit of the West gets off this "The Grand Rondo woman who put two dozen eggs into her bed, so they shouldn't freeze, while she was absent four or five days, and, on returning home late at night, bounced into that same bed without thinking what she had 'laid' there—bounced out again in an eggs scrable condition!"

A little girl nine or ten years of age, daughter of Fred Stroeder, of Shedd, Linn county, died very suddenly at that place, on Tuesday. She had been playing as usual until towards noon, when she complained of feeling unwell, and laid down. In three or four hours thereafter she was dead Diptheria is thought to be the cause of her death.

Last Friday the farmers who reside in the neighborhood of the Morgan school house, Linn county, met at that place and organized the Butte Creek Farmers' Club by the election of the following officers. M Morgan, President, A. Brandon, Vice President, R. D. Michael, Secretary; W. P. Anderson, Assistant Secretary and Treasurer.

The Enterprise says According to the reports on file in the Second Superintendent's office, there are 2,750 children in Clackamas county reported who are between 4 and 20 years of age, several have not reported, and allowing these to average with the lowest that have been reported, they would number about 3,100, or a little more than half the population of the county.

Steele of Modoc notoriety, has written a pugnacious letter to Thompson of the Mercury, in which he threatens to do all sort of rough things unless something is taken back. The Mercury not only refuses to retract, but throws more shot in the gizzard Modoc's camp, and calls for a peace commission, at the same time slightly intimating that a piece of rope commission, with the Jackson county Sheriff at the head—or neck perhaps, of Steele, would be about the thing to meet the ends of justice

Linn county takes hold of the Centennial matter as though she meant business At the time Mr Dufur lectured at Albany, an Executive Committee, consisting of Rev Dr Geary, O. P Burkhart, Martin Payne, Jno. Borrows, and Mart V. Brown, were chosen by the audience to devise measures for securing the amount of subscriptions expected from Linn county. This Committee has appointed sub committees, consisting of two persons at each town in the county to solicit subscriptions in their localities Following are the sub committees. At Scio—J. B Irvine, G B. Christie; Lebanon—S. H. Claughton, C. B. Montague, Brownsville—J. H. Washburn, W. R Kirk, Harrisburg—E Monit, Hiram Smith, Halsey—Jacob Thompson, Caleb Gray; Shedd—C. F Hogue, Frank Shedd.

The Albany Democrat says Halsey has a Methodist preacher who is slightly on the German order. He was last Sabbath preaching from the text of the parable of the man who gave a great supper and sent his servants out to invite the folks in to partake. In elaborating upon the account of the parable, our Dutch divine said "Und when tem servants dey go out to invite te frents in, one he say he can't come pecause he pin pought some land und must go und see it, nudher man he don't can come for he pin pought a yoke of steers und he must dry tem, und te under feller he can't don't come to supper pecause he how yust pen married und haf to dry 'em dop" The gravity of that meeting was not a prominent feature for a few minutes after this eminent attempt at expounding Holy Writ.

The following news from Whatcom, W. T. is from the Courier's correspondent at that place "This section of country seems to be looking up Settlers are coming in by every steamer, and remaining, too A small but very good hotel was built last fall, and a large one is now being fitted up A restaurant has just been opened A neat little steamer, the Rose, has just been placed on the route between this place, Semiahmoo and the islands, connecting at San Juan with the Favorite for Port Townsend I have heard a rumor that a weekly paper is soon to be started here, but have not heard by whom Altogether things look prosperous, and we expect the well known richness of our lands and excellence of our harbor to bring us a great many permanent settlers the coming spring It is also rumored that a large saw mill is to be built here this summer, and it will be strange if some enterprising individual does not before long avail himself of the excellent water power here to erect a grist mill."

We do not vouch for the exactness of the following Albany items from the Democrat M M Harvey is the proud father of a festive boy So to Mose Sternberg, but its the other kind A squalling fellow with ears like the bounty of Providence and a mouth like the Mammoth Cave, has been standing about our street corners during the past week, selling a "pain cure" Those who have tried his medicine say it is a dead shot on curing any pain you have on taking it—i. e., it gives you such pain of its own that you forget all your other ills Last week Prof Stites was laid up with neuralgia, and his pupils had a chance to get their backs well for this week's hostilities. An obstreperous fightinger had four noses raised on his plus last Saturday, in this city, and at last account he was hunting for the man that struck William Pat. During the late cold snap damsels at The Dalles amused themselves by sliding down hill in tin pans They held the pan close behind them, took a short run, sat down, and let 'er scoot!

SATURDAY MORNING MARCH 15, 1873

The Last of the Bribery Cases

The motion shown of a disposition that made the last session of Congress famous for resolutions passed away with the Congress that so agitated The only bribery case that remained undisposed of of the many which came to light before the adjournment, in that of Senator Caldwell Coming up before that of his late colleague Pomeroy it impressed itself upon the attention of the Senate and the country still The facts in the main are undisputed and of a very simple nature There needed but little trouble in reaching a conclusion as to what was done by Caldwell, what ever may be the difficulty in the minds of Senators in the way of determining the moral character of his conduct The question appears to have resolved itself into one rather of consistency than of fact Caldwell wanted to have an open field in the Legislature of Kansas for the Senatorship and he took the most effective way of obtaining that object There was another candidate who was regarded by him as a formidable rival and whose retirement would leave the situation very favorably for Caldwell He therefore made a business proposition to the troublesome competitor He desired to know how much money that individual thought his chances were worth The sum named was fifteen thousand dollars —at any rate that sum was finally agreed upon as the consideration for his disappearance Caldwell paid the money, and the fact was thoroughly known Its was, of course, elected.

Upon this state of facts the grave Senators of the United States are divided as to what shall be done to or with Caldwell. Some insist that the transaction was not wrongful They say that if a man wants to take money as a compensation for his chances of political preferment, he has the moral, as he certainly has the legal, right to do so and that one man may rightfully give whatever another may rightfully take. There is nothing like bribery in this, it is urged, because neither of the parties has an official duty to discharge in the premises, and the office which both are seeking, and concerning which the bargain is made, is, after all, to be conferred by others who are in no wise parties to the transaction

This theory is much more plausible than that upon which the Credit Mobilier business was sought to be justified by Oakes Ames and those who espoused his cause in the recent investigation but it is likely that the Senate will hesitate to go before the country upon a proposition however specious, which sanctions the trafficking of politicians in the highest trusts in the nation. Caldwell's case is just less obnoxious to the charge of corruption than the buying of votes in the party primaries or in the party caucuses, both of which, though not bribery under the law, are as much bribery in fact and in morals, as it is to pay a voter a stipulated sum of money for his vote. The best disposition that could be made of Mr. Senator Caldwell would be a prompt expulsion This disposition may not be made of the case, but no vote will pass the Senate which can be interpreted as a justification of his conduct Unmistakable.

The gossip who presides over the columns of the Bulletin can not be considered a literary prodigy. Not satisfied with publishing as a piece of literary news the old and stale fictional Dora Shaw's authorship of Watson's poem—"The Beautiful Snow"—a fiction, the revival of which in the East, the Springfield Republican characterizes as "reckless"—the Bulletin man now rushes forward with a defense of his literary reputation, and declares that the controversy about the authorship of the poem is still in dispute, and that J W Watson is about to have the piece printed in a volume of his poems The item of literary news is quite as fresh as the other Years ago Watson's poems were printed, the first piece in the volume being, "The Beautiful Snow."

It is quite evident somebody is practising a joke on the Editor of the Bulletin. It may be fine fun to gull him with those literary "gems" that are thirteen years old, and see them come out as news, but it is cruelty to the victim Experience, though a dear school, is the only one in which a certain class of persons can learn wisdom, and if the Editor of the Bulletin is not incapable of learning even in this school, we should think his repeated misfortunes of late would teach him that the only safety for his feet is to stick to the old twaddle about "Democratic millionaires." He invariably gets in beyond his depth when he leaves that subject.

The Salem Mercury of the 14th inst contains a spirited article designed to be an apology to E Steele of Lane who has figured so conspicuously in Captain Jack's camp. The time and talent of the editor of that journal has been pretty fully occupied of late in making apologies for opinions on the Modoc business. And they have been constructed in a peculiarly vigorous style This last one is dedicated to the mute correspondent of whom we have made mention And it is like one of those ingeniously contrived Japanese boxes, containing a drawer opened by a secret spring which it takes the eye to discover. So with this apology You know there's an apology there, but the difficulty is in discovering just where it has.

An exceedingly good story has lately been uttered by the cunning Premier of England. "Disraeli how can you live with that old woman your wife" brutally asked an M P after having liberally dined Disraeli returned in his most cutting manner "I possess a virtue of which you are incapable—gratitude.

Walla Walla is a happy city Its Governor resigned the other day because the people would not respect his authority Immediately thereupon, the populace enraged doubtless at their ruler's acquiescence, pulled the carpet sticking all the Governor's valuables and otherwise maltreating the retiring official.

We hear of a remarkable case of general weakness in Kentucky. There is a case of the Pope in Bowling Green wh during many years of service, has tried more than one thousand cases and so correct have been his judgments, that but three of the thousand have been disturbed by superior courts

When Calhoun Patterson and others first made their pompous display of complicity in Credit Mobilier Judge Poland remarked to Horace F Clark "Under Oakes Ames as an added or he is to be the fall I don't think he is an ideal Butler, in the spring on the theatre [illegible] and Caliban chases, says upon the righteous Ben Jonsonians.

Our morning's dispatches announce the death of the eminent scholar and prelate whose name is the subject of this article He died lately in Florence, Italy, whither he had gone to seek the restoration of that health and vigor which had been sacrificed to the human race in long years of labor and toil

Charles Pettit MacIlvaine was born in Burlington New Jersey January 16th 1798 He was the son of Joseph MacIlvaine a prominent lawyer and politician of New Jersey and who represented that State in the national Senate up to the time of his death which occurred in 1829 Nothing of righteous Charles, who was a young man of marked ability graduated at Princeton College In 1818 he was admitted to the deacon's orders in July 1819 by the venerable Bishop White In 1822 he received priest's orders at the hands of Bishop Kemp of Maryland Three years later he became professor of ethics and Chaplain in the United States Military Academy at West Point and from 1827 to 1832 he was rector of St Ann's Church at Brooklyn N Y October 31st 1832, by the laying on of hands he was consecrated Bishop in the Protestant Episcopal Church for the diocese of Ohio which holy office he retained we believe up to the day of his death The name of Charles P MacIlvaine is well known in the world of theology His treatise on "The Evidences of Christianity" is characterized by a depth of thought and logical precision which places it among the most valuable works in controversial theology It embodies the greater portion of lectures delivered in the New York University in 1851, which were first published at the instance of the council of that city His pamphlet on "Oxford Divinity compared with that of the Roman and Anglican Churches" was a masterly dissertation on the question provoked by the famous "Oxford Tracts "The Truth and the Life" and numerous other volumes published in later years, earned him a fair reputation as a thinker The University of Oxford, in 1853, conferred upon him the degree of D C L, and in 1838 he received the honorary degree of LL D from the University of Cambridge

He has gone from the world bearing such honors to the feet of the Master, and leaving behind him the sweet odor of a life well spent

Just now the origin of that ubiquitous sogneman John Smith, is troubling Oriental philologists The name abounds in all languages under various forms For instance, we have the Apollo Smintheus of the Greeks, which is evidently a corruption of the sonorous Smith. And it is hinted that the builder of the ark was first christened Jno Smith, that afterwards the J was dropped, and the race of Cockneys (who were included, of course, in the animals saved) prolonged the name to No—ah! The race, then, has a common interest in the name of Smith. Says the Boston Advertiser

John Smith transformed to the other languages seems to climb the ladder to respectability That, in Latin it is Johannes Smithus, the Italians smooth off with Giovanni Smith the Spaniards render it Juan Smithus, the Dutchman adopts it as Hans Schmidt the French flatten it out into Jean Smeet and the Russian sneezes and barks Jozzoff Smittowski. When John gets into the tea trade in Canton he becomes Jovan Shimmit, if he clambers about Mount the Icelanders say he is Johne smithson In the trades among the Tuscaroras he becomes Ton Qua Smittie, in Poland he is known as Ivan Schmittitwenski, should he wander among the Welsh mountains the talk of Jihon Schmidd when he goes to Mexico he is booked as Janth J'Smith if of course turn he mingles among Greek trans, he turns to Ian Smitton, and in Turkey he is utterly disguised as yourself as Yon Self

The Salem Statesman of yesterday says

We are informed by the dispatches that Gen. S. Boutwell, the present Secretary of the Treasury, was elected on the 12 h inst, U S Senator from Massachusetts to succeed Charles Sumner We do not think that Massachusetts has lost anything by the exchange Mr Bon well is not so profound an statesman as the present incumbent, but he is a man of good ability, unquestioned integrity, and withal a practical man Sumner is a scholar and a theorist, Boutwell is a practical working man For all material purposes he is the better representative of the two This is not the age of oratory, but of hard work The Senate during since ceased to be controlled by speeches and long essays, that small part of what is accomplished for a constituency or for the general public welfare is done in the committee room, by the worker of whom the public hears little. For the kind of service the senator elect is far superior to the incumbent

Where's Grandall? We have been laboring under the delusion, all this while, that Gen. S Boutwell was elected Senator from Massachusetts to fill the unexpired term of Hon. Henry Wilson, who, we may remark was lately elected Vice President of the United States — as the Statesman may remember

The Central Pacific Railroad Company is slaughtering its employes at a fearful rate In the Sacramento Union of March 8th appears a card signed by seven hundred and eleven employes of that company, to the effect that the subscribers have worked for the corporation from one to nine years They say that they have always been paid promptly until within the last two months, and they know that payment is not withheld through any unworthy motive but rather for proper and controlling reasons They add that their confidence in the honesty and business integrity of the employers is undisturbed, and that their friendship cannot be disturbed by any temporary business depression The publication of this card containing as it does a hint towards the financial embarrassment of the company has caused quite a stir in the business communities of California

The House Committee on Appropriations to whom was referred the postal telegraph proposition, made no report to the Forty-second Congress They were instructed to inquire in the value of the telegraph property franchises etc in the United States, and the expense of duplicating them by the government or corporations The results of the Committee's investigation will, however be appropriated by the advocates of the subject as a basis for future operations The subject will again be agitated on the assembling of the Forty third Congress

The General Assembly of Virginia has ordered an investigation into certain charges presented against the Ladies' Mount Vernon Association which seriously affect the management of the society The allegations of misappropriation are based on evidence of the authorized speculation upon funds at the seat of Washington

The San Francisco Call says that the inhabitants of that city had paid to the collector up to March 8th, the enormous sum of $3,305 000. The whole amount of taxes collected and still due is $4 320 000

For gold responsible ——ing, commend us to the Washington Ave Here are two specimens

It is reported that a boulder of gold, weighing over 250 pounds, has been found in a Chinese claim at Hoyt's Flat, Nevada

Human foot prints have been discovered in the rock in Douglas county, Oregon, seven feet below the surface of the ground They were 15 inches in length

The Linn County Farmers

The meeting of the Farmers of Linn county, held at Albany last Saturday, elected officers as follows

For President, Judge Barlow Vice President, James Finleyson Secretary, J A W Stannard Corresponding Secretary J H Smith

The Committee on Resolutions reported as follows

Resolved, That we cordially invite the co operation of Farmers to be held at Salem on April 8th 9th

Resolved That we hail with unbounded pleasure the news the reports as from different quarters of the State of the organization of Farmers Clubs for their mutual protection

Resolved That we implore our brethren throughout the State to proceed at once to organize Farmers Clubs in those portions of the State where such organization do not exist

Resolved That it is most mostly in the interests of the farmers to build their own warehouse and to hold their produce in their own possession until sold

Resolved That we as farmers do not propose to make war upon or interfere with the interest of any business man or men but simply to protect ourselves

Resolved That we tender our sincere thanks to the editors of those papers who have given us aid and comfort by publishing letters notices and other matter that have tended to the furthering of our interest and we consider it our duty to give them our patronage and support

The resolutions were unanimously adopted, speeches were made by Messrs John Henry Smith James Finleyson Philip Low of Linn county and Capt J H D Gray of Clatsop The Register says "The meeting was largely attended, and great harmony and much enthusiasm prevailed. The tangible results are yet to be seen United action is now the need

A week or two since our dispatches mentioned a terrible accident which befel a company of pleasure seekers in Smyrna Below will be found some details not given in the telegram,

A loud cracking was heard, and within five minutes the entire cafe disappeared under the water A few persons near the entrance contrived to effect their escape, and some saved themselves by jumping through the windows into the sea Boatmen rowed up in numbers, but their efforts to save life were in vain The search the day afterward for the dead bodies was a sad spectacle. The acrobats were withdrawn from the water in their showy costumes of the previous night The limbs of all the bodies were contracted, as if with pain Two hearses were engaged the whole day in conveying the remains discovered to a hospital. The total number of bodies found up to the present time is eighty, and it is supposed that there are fifty more in the water The company of acrobats consisted of seven persons, of whom three were women one of these latter is the only survivor The Government will institute proceedings against the proprietor of the cafe who did not pay heed to the warning of danger which was given him in time.

The Use of Tobacco —The American Education Society (Presbyterian) has got itself into hot water by declining to assist any young theologue who indulges in tobacco The New York Evangelist is filled with communications pro and con One young man pleads for "my beloved pipe, that choicest solace of my life of toil and self-denial During the past year the $25 received from the Board has, with strict economy, about paid for my tobacco My other expenses I cannot retrench, so there I am I tried to reason with the Board, told them frankly my situation" etc. Another wants a society of "Dodges and Lenoxes" formed for the purpose of supplying tobacco to indigent theologues A ministerial wife also has something to say for tobacco. "For my part," she says, "I hope there will never be a room in our house too good for my husband to smoke in If men had more freedom in their own houses, and were not treated when they come home, as they often are, as intruders, there would be more domestic happiness, and fewer well-filled club houses."

The manufacture of rails by a new system, which does away with manual labor to a great extent, is to be carried on in a rail mill which is now being erected at Louisville, Ky, at a cost of $500,000 In the process of making the rail, the iron passes through thirteen sets of rolls, without a halt, and is turned over five times for side-rollings The iron is taken from the heating furnace and transformed into a rail in half a minute

The Corvallis Reporter facetiously remarks "Utah has now three delegates in Congress, namely Hooper, Clagett and Merrit, besides a pig iron member from the smoky end of Pennsylvania The addition of a yellow dog is all we want"

A woman in Nashua, N H lately put a burglar to flight by dropping a musket on his head

SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 15, 1873.

CITY.

IN WORKING ORDER.—A letter yesterday was shown us, written by Edward G. Tilton, Superintendent of the Locks and Canal, to Mr Goldsmith, President of the Willamet Transportation Company. The writer stated that the water had not been, nor was at the present time too high for boats to pass through. He added that steamers could ascend or descend now with that ease and perfect safety as when the river was at a much lower stage. The attempt to pass up or down by small steamers, having but little power could not be made with entire impunity at the present stage. At the time the letter was written, the water lacked but one inch of reaching the top of the guard lock gauge, and if it ran over, the surplus quantity of water could find means of escape through the wicket gates. The statement has been made that the trial trip of the steamer Annie Stewart was delayed in consequence of the stage of the river not admitting of the operation of the locks. This, we are informed, is not the case. At present, the water is so high and the current so strong at Rook Island, the owners of the Annie Stewart are apprehensive that she could not be handled with entire safety. The steamer being long and unwieldy, it would be a risk to attempt to ascend at present.

EMPIRE NEWS.—The following vessels arrived at Astoria in the 14th inst.: Bark Free Trade and schooners Tacoma, Parallel and Gotama.

The Free Trade was taken in tow by the Merrimac, and arrived at this port yesterday afternoon with a large assorted cargo.

The H. L. Tacoma was in tow of the Tacoma, and, probably arrived here last evening at half-past two o'clock.

The Free Trade reports having seen a large, deeply laden ship last Saturday, about 75 miles west of the bar, and apparently making for the mouth of the river.

On Thursday the bark Hione got partly off the middle sands at high tide, but appeared to ground again before reaching the channel.

The bark Benin was drawn alongside Flanders' wharf yesterday, where she will complete her cargo of wheat.

The bark Tamaya hove anchor and came up to McGraken's wharf yesterday. The ballast will be heaved overboard and a cargo of grain will take the place.

ABOUT READY.—The new Gov. Grover, concerning which so much has been said, is to all intents ready for the trial trip. She will probably make the trial trip on Monday. The Gov. Grover is one of the finest crafts which at present ply on the waters of the upper Willamet. The boiler and machinery are all new, and were turned out in this city within the last few months. The cabin is large, well arranged, and furnished in first class style. There are nine staterooms and eighteen berths, besides the ladies' cabin, pantry, bar room, office, etc. Freight and passenger accommodations are not inferior to any boat in the State of equal dimensions. From the handsome model and the size of the engines and boiler, the craft ought to make good speed. The boiler and hull were inspected yesterday and everything found in splendid condition. The hull was measured yesterday by Mr. H. L. Hoyt, Deputy Collector of Customs. The following is the tonnage of the boat: admeasurement under tonnage deck, 153 69; above deck, 250 22. Total tonnage, 404.01.

MAN OVERBOARD.—Captain Foster, of the Stark street ferry, while attempting to shove the boat from the landing with a pole yesterday morning, lost his balance and fell backwards into the water. Fortunately the boat was moving very slowly from the shore. Foster as he fell caught hold of the edge of the apron, and managed to cling on until the headway of the boat was checked. Several persons came hastily to the rescue and drew him on the ferry. A thorough wetting and the loss of a hat were the only disagreeable consequences.

SOON READY.—Advance sheets of McCornick's State Directory have been issued. About 120 pages of the book have already been completed by the printers, and the work promises to be issued at an early day. From a perusal of the sheets before us, we feel warranted in the statement that no preceding work of a similar character has presented in detail a more comple and exhaustive description of Oregon and her varied resources.

LIGHTERING.—Steam was raised yesterday on the Emma Hoguard, and that boat went down the river below Astoria to assist the bark Heone in getting off the middle sands, where she has been lying since Tuesday. Eight men were taken down who will be employed in lightering the vessel. About 200 tons of wheat will be transferred to the steamer, and the bark either pulled or allowed to float off on the tide.

THE CONCERT.—The attendance at the concert at Nonpareil Hall last evening was quite large, considering the attraction at Masonic Hall. The efforts of each performer, and the quartettes were highly appreciated. During the evening a lunch was set before those present which was fully discussed. The proceeds will be applied to the aid of the lodge.

DOWN TO ASTORIA.—The bark Penang completed her cargo of wheat for England yesterday, and was taken in tow of the steamer Emma Hoyt and for Astoria. She will be ready for sea when the crew is obtained and the state of the bar will allow.

NO VERDICT.—The arguments in the case of U. S. vs. Walter S. Kitchen, indicted for robbing the mails, were made yesterday in the U. S. District Court, and the case was submitted to the jury about 5 o'clock in the evening. As we go to press, the jury were still out unable to agree upon a verdict.

A. Ebman builds neat and substantial cottage houses, hard finished, for $650. Prices for story and a half and two story houses reasonable in proportion. Plans of houses on hand. Inquire at 105 First street, opposite postoffice.

REAL ESTATE SALE.—Remember the sale today at 2 o'clock P. M. at the Court House door by Richardson, of desirable property belonging to the estate of W. E. Cooper.

Remember the Good Day Prayer Meetings at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., corner of Stark and First street, from 12½ to 1 o'clock.

PERSONAL.

Prof. Marsh, of the Forest Grove University, is in the city.

Col. H. H. Leonard is confined to his room by an attack of illness. It is thought to be temporary.

Senator Mitchell is on the Committee of Privileges and Elections, also Railroads and Public Roads.

Attorney General Williams has been ill and was absent from a recent Cabinet meeting on that account.

J. S. Kincaid, Esq., publisher of the State Journal, and J. T. Apperson, G. M., I. O. O. F., are in the city.

Mr. Chas H. Dodd, of Hawley, Dodd & Co., returned from an extended trip East of the mountains on Thursday evening. He reports the prospects for spring trade good, although at the present it is quite dull.

SPECIAL CHURCH NOTICES.

This evening at 7 o'clock, Dr. Lindsley will preach in the basement of the Presbyterian Church. All are cordially invited to attend.

There will be preaching in the German language to-morrow at 3 o'clock P. M., in the basement of the Presbyterian Church, corner of Third and Washington streets, by H. Gans, pastor.

By exchange with the pastor of the Baptist church, Rev. Addison Jones, of Salem, will preach at the Baptist Church to-morrow morning and evening. Subject of the morning sermon, "Covering another's sins." In the evening Mr. Jones will present "The Personal Fatherhood of God."

At the First Congregational Church, J. D. Eaton will take for his topic of discourse in the morning—"Loving God rather than loving Creeds." The evening will be devoted to a concert exercise by members of the Sabbath School, consisting of singing and recitations. Several addresses may be expected. Seats free.

MR CONDON'S LECTURE.

Several hundred persons were present last evening at the new Masonic Hall on the occasion of the lecture delivered by the Rev. Thomas Condon, of the Dalles, on the subject of "Ancient Oregon." A more cultured or appreciative audience is not often seen than were in attendance. The lecturer had brought from his cabinet at the Dalles a number of fossil specimens, with which his remarks were profusely illustrated. For want of space we present a very brief outline of the lecture.

The ruins of ancient historical structures are full of interest to the student of science. This interest increases by each degree of remoteness of the times to which they relate. The basin of the Columbia is full of such ruins—especially so in that which reveals the natural history of the Tertiary age. We observe in its rocky masses an older world of life in ruins, ruins of forests and lakes, almost as well defined as those of to-day.

But it is when these ruins reveal to us the more than sculptured forms of its animal life, that the record rises to the power of a fascination, for here the more record of facts is transformed into a reproduction of the animal from itself to tell its own story and bear its own testimony to the power and wisdom of God.

The oldest strata containing the remains of land animals yet brought to light in Oregon, dates back to the early part of the Middle Tertiary.

An irregular, extensive strip of land, whose middle line nearly coincided with what is now the crest of the blue mountain range, was all of Oregon that stood above the ocean at the beginning of the Tertiary age. A few islands dotted the sea far to the westward, indicating other lines of upheaval, and destined at a later age to become respectively the Cascade and Coast ranges.

The earlier Tertiary rocks of Oregon have in them none of those mammalian animal remains. In our rocks these are first found in the Middle Tertiary, or Miocene period, thus indicating that not until this period was Oregon so far and widely elevated above the waters as to have then become far the first time, connected with the main land to the eastward.

The lecturer then proceeded to compare a few of these animal remains, that constituted Oregon's first fauna, with corresponding bones of our living animals, as far as the parallel would admit. First, the rhinoceros, of which there existed three distinct species. Second, the entelodon resembling in many respects the rhinoceros, of which only one specie was known. Third, the tapir. Fourth, the oreodon, three species. Fifth, musk deer, one species. Sixth, anchitherium. Seventh, the lion, (of the last species the lecturer presented a fine fossil specimen of the cat family, much larger than the California lion, and compared it with the head of an Oregon cougar). Eighth, the rodents, from the squirrel to the beaver.

All these species exhibited belong to a period in Oregon's history removed far from the present; first, chronologically, by hundreds of thousands of years; second, geographically, for the whole mountain system has been upheaved since they lived; third, relatively to other creations by the fact that all these passed away and other races of animals took their place at a later period.

One can hardly close the volume of this old record without feeling that the Ancient Oregon of its story, although lacking in the altitude of the mountains, and in the wonderful depth of the canyons of the Oregon of to-day, was yet a more beautiful land than ours. The ruins of that first Oregon were covered under lava and ashes 1,000 feet or more below the surface and a new record opened.

At the close of the lecture, Mr. Condon invited all present to come forward to the rostrum and inspect closely the many fossil specimens which were spread out on tables. In response to the invitation, a large number of ladies and gentlemen came forward, while the lecturer explained more fully in detail each of the fossils. The lecture consumed more than an hour in its delivery, and was listened to with great interest by the large audience. Mr. Condon will depart for Salem this morning, at which place he will deliver the same lecture on Tuesday evening next.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The Postal Cards will be ready by the first of May.

The Ajax sails from the Golden City for this port to-day.

The new fountain at the Central Market attracts much attention.

The pruning knife is being manipulated lively about shrubbery.

The average attendance at the schools in Multnomah county is 1739.

There is music in the air—a quartette at the Central Market to-night.

An elaborate report of the County School Superintendent appears to day.

The Yamhill county Reporter sent in yesterday its donation to the Crooley fund.

Neimeyer, the fashionable tailor, will shortly remove to First street, between Oak and Pine.

The flag was again displayed yesterday over the Headquarters of the Department of the Columbia.

The ladies will show the latest fashions on the promenade to day—providing the pleasant weather continues.

The barkentine Melanethon, with 310 M feet of lumber and 150 half bbls salmon, arrived at San Francisco on the 8th—ten days out.

Joaquin Miller, it is announced, is writing a poem entitled, "By the Sun-down Seas," which will be published in London next fall.

In our Oregon City letter published yesterday, the writer was made to say "poetic butterfly,"—it should have been pretty butterfly.

James Goldsmith and Louis E. Herman, late of this city, are connected with New York City, where they will remain permanently.

The East Portland band was rehearsing new pieces last evening. The sound of the big drum could be heard distinctly in this city.

It would be a matter of comfort to hold your nose when you pass the corner of Stark and Front streets. The smell arising from the sewer there omits a loud smell—safe to bet on.

The proceeds of the masquerade will be placed in the treasury of the Tam Veroin Society. When sufficient funds are on hand, the Society will invest in property on which a gymnasium will be erected.

AMUSEMENTS

A festival will be given at the Presbyterian Church by the Ladies' Society in aid of the Young Men's Christian Association on Wednesday evening next.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Observe C S Drake's card relative to his specific remedy in the advertising columns.

W. K. Badger has removed his entire stock of pianos, organs, and sheet music to the store room lately occupied by Taylor & Brownell, Third street near Morrison. Those in want of anything in the musical line will do well to make a visit to his establishment. He offers rare bargains and will be happy to wait upon all who call. Like a sensible man he advertises.

A. B Richardson, auctioneer, will offer at administrator's sale in front of the Court House at the hour of two P. M., to day, the following property—lots 7 and 8 in block 61; 3 and 4 in block 1; 4 in block 72, 55 feet of No. 5, and part of No. 6, in block 25, the Quimby block; 161, East Portland; 5½ acres in L. C. Potter's donation claim, also other property. See advertisement.

Judge Toohy perpetrates the following at the expense of the Narrow Gauge. "The train on the Utah Northern Railroad due at Logan on the 13th inst was snowed in, and abandoned near Mendon in the afternoon. The smoke stack was covered in fifteen minutes after the storm began, but several women went out with brooms to clear the track, and it was thought when our informant left Logan that the train would be dug out by the first of March. By order of the board of directors the engineers will hereafter hold an open umbrella over the engine when snow or heavy dew falls on the line."

A TRUE BALSAM—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is truly a balsam. It contains the balsamic principle of this Wild Cherry and the balsamic properties of the tar and pine. Its ingredients are all balsamic. Coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchitis and consumption speedily disappear under its balsamic influence.

Upon the health of the teeth depends the purity of the breath. Preserve them unblemished by the use of the famous SOZODONT, that perfectly harmless vegetable preparation, and you will never regret it.

Districts 21 and 27, give under the heading "male," "female," the number enrolled. It would be well if the blanks stated, both the whole number of children of both sexes and the enrolled number. A footing of these would then be given from which to judge of the regularity of attendance e g, in No. 21 by comparing 132, the whole number enrolled, with 109, the average attendance is seen to be 83 per cent., and in District 27, 84 per cent.

District 1 reports 331 children enrolled (727 boys and 604 girls). Average attendance is 1,111, or 86 per cent.

The second numbers in reports of party districts represent Multnomah county, and these only are included in totals.

Under "County Fund" included in each case the sum apportioned from the general State Fund. In District No. 1, the sum from this source was $2,575 40.

Under "Other school property" is included, in some cases, the land owned by the district. In District No. 1, furniture is valued at $5,000, and land $50,000.

The following teachers have been employed in the county: District No. 1. Employed at present: J. W. Johnson, Miss M. Gallagher, Meachen, Miss O. Dwyer, Miss M. A. Hodgson, I. W. Pratt, J. M. Williamson, Miss S. Tayl, Mrs. O. S. Phelps, Miss H. B. Hoover, Miss J. Sutton, Miss F. Bodman, Miss S. Ritchey, Miss A. Shelby, Miss M. Pollock, Mrs. J. E. Brigg, Miss S. Barker, Miss E. Monnes, S. M. Kirk, Miss N. N. Freeman, Miss F. Hilman, Miss K. Lythe, Miss M. Gibson, J. B. McGibney, C. J. Mosby. Employed during the year: Mrs. M. McCrudy, Miss M. Mulkey, Miss M. Sinclair, T. H. Crawford, Mrs. A. E. Hurlbur, J. M. Carter, C. Clark, Miss C. F. Ellis.

No. 2, S. F. Bennett; 3, Miss Saunders, Miss Gould; 4, F. Kittridge, P. McCli; 5, Miss Ingram, C. J. Mosby; 6, Miss N. Walker, J. B. Grim; 7, J. Murphy; 8, Miss Westfall; 10, Miss M. Hunt; 12, E. L. Chapman; 14, G. F. Hanson, J. L. Tuttle; 16, Miss S. Hill; 17, J. N. Davis, Mrs. C. M. Morton; 18, P. Smith; 18, Jas. Smith; 19, A. T. Steven; 8. Kelly; 20, Miss C. Hall; 21, C. McLoran, M. C. Charlton, W. W. Freeman, Mrs. W. W. Tyor; 22, M. Dustin; 25, Mrs. A. Brown, J. Fitz; 27, Miss J. Kindt; 30, E. E. Burk; 31, J. Ruff, J. Sanders, W. T. Williamson, J. R. Buff, Clackamas, No. 1, J. H. McLoud; No. 13, Miss S. Miller, M. Pollock, M. Cornell; No. 6, Columbia, J. S. Waterton, Mrs. Charlton; No. 25, Washington, E. C. Clark.

Text books—The following books appear to be in largest use in the country districts: Actoth's Geographies, Wilson's Readers, Clark's, Pinneo's Grammars, Thompson's or Davies' Arithmetics, Sanders' Spellers, Quackenbos' Grammars, Spencerian Writing series.

The following is a list of books used by district No. 1: National Fifth Reader, Wilson's Readers and Spellers, Robinson's series of Arithmetics, Colburn's Mental Arithmetic, Davies' Algebra, Monteith's Geography, Clark's and Pinneo's Grammar, Parker's Philosophy, Andrews' Latin Grammar and Sallust, Anthon's Cicero, Bullion's Greek Grammar and Reader, Marsh's Book keeping, Youman's Chemistry, Cutter's Physiology, Quackenbos' History.

Before the next report, the State Board will doubtless issue circulars according to law, and establish a uniform series for the whole State.

STATISTICS.

It will be seen that over one-half the children in the county attend the schools of District No. 1. The average cost per scholar (taking the basis of average attendance) was $25 35. Estimating the whole number enrolled to be 2,175, the cost per scholar was $20 28. Assuming the total population of the county to be 13,000, the cost of education for the year, to each inhabitant, was $3 40. The corresponding figures for District No. 1 are $32 57; $28 00, and 40 to a population of 11,000 $3 39. The large school house erected in Portland during the year, explains the unusual per cent age indicated. In 1871, in the State of Massachusetts, the average cost of education for actual scholars was $19 63, and for each inhabitant, $3 75. It will thus appear but we have reached Eastern standards, at least in our expenditures for school purposes, and every citizen will take a pride in the fact, with the conclusion it suggests.

APPORTIONMENT OF COUNTY FUNDS.

The Treasurer reports $9,691 43 coin, and a small amount of currency (too small to distribute,) in the Treasury, March 15th, which apportioned to 3,785 of school age, gives $2 54 8 to each. The amount is smaller than in previous years. Taxes have been paid in slowly, and the State tax, by law, took precedence of all other payments, leaving only a small sum to the credit of school fund, over last year. A second apportionment will be made in September.

"COMPULSORY" EDUCATION.

Unfortunately so named, is a subject which should engage the interest of our citizens, as it is doing the minds of thinking people everywhere. We desire to enter a formal protest against the word "compulsory," which is a red rag before the "free American people," to keep their prejudices alive, against the most obvious and safest, as it is the most needed reform of the day. It is proposed to regulate the attendance of children at school. In other words, since the community, in the interest of self protection and order, is taxed to abate ignorance, it justly demands that the full end of such taxation be reached. Our county is plainly in the condition of that Parliament which ordered and paid for the removal of the powder stored under the Parliament house; the parties removed all but five barrels, and when remonstrated with said, "they thought they could do no harm!" The class from whom the country has most to fear, is that which at present is least reached by educational influences, viz: the idle, vicious and illiterate, who desire no knowledge and hate progress. So evident, on general principles, is the right of the State to exercise some pressure on these classes in the matter of their children, that we would long since have "regulated" school attendance, but for the use of an obnoxious word. Words are thing, and in themselves are potent arguments. Now, all law is compulsory. The Street Commissioner compels by law to remove a nuisance from my street door; the health officer closes my house when it contains an infectious disease. Yet we have no such title to the usual laws; we have no acts entitled "compulsory," but acts to regulate a great many things. So called "compulsory" education is fully embodied in any law which, under certain penalties more or less severe, and with certain exceptions, requires the parent or guardian to send a child to school six or twelve weeks in a year. The simple reading of the law, as now held in older States, is an answer to every objection. For instance, the Michigan law reads as follows:

SECTION 1. The people of the State of Michigan enact, That every parent, guardian, or other person in the State of Michigan having control and charge of a child or children between the ages of eight and fourteen years, shall be required to send any such child or children to a public school for a period of at least twelve weeks in each year, commencing on the first Monday of September, in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and seventy one, at least six weeks of which shall be consecutive, unless such child or children are excused from such attendance by the board of the school district in which such parents or guardians reside, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that his bodily or mental condition has been such as to prevent his attendance at school or application to study for the period required, or that such child or children are taught in a private school, or at home, in such branches as are usually taught in primary schools, or have already acquired the ordinary branches of learning taught in the public school; provided, in case a public school shall not be taught for three months during the year, within two miles by the nearest traveled road, of the residence of any person within the school district, he shall not be liable to the provisions of this act.

SEC. 3. In case any parent, guardian, or other person shall fail to comply with the provisions of this act, said parent, guardian, or other person shall be liable to a fine of not less than $5 or more than $10 for the first offense, nor less than $10 or more than $20 for the second and every subsequent offense; said fine shall be collected, etc.

What objection, we ask, can hold against such a law, which would not hold against all law? The Pope who would refuse to educate his child, unless such liberal provisions for exceptional cases, as may be required for the public good to do so, would be tolerated by a free people than any common nuisance.

The value of such regulative laws is felt in large communities especially. By a fair estimate we have Portland and immediate vicinity now 600 to 1000 between the ages of 8 and 16 who attend no school whatever, of whom doubtless 500 should attend school, and probably one half of this number at the lowest estimate do not read and write with any facility. Any system of education that admits such a margin of ignorance, like a Scythian horde to harrass and cripple its movements, will fail miserably of effecting the great ends of economy and security to the State. We have spoken in full of this most important subject, because it will soon be generally agitated, no doubt, as a national measure of self-preservation.

THE NEW SCHOOL LAW which went into force December 29, 1872, contains but few provisions affecting the general operation of the law heretofore existing. It provides for a State Superintendent, a uniform series of text books, State certificates for teachers, Institutes yearly in each judicial district, and at State; distributes the county fund on the third Monday of March, and again in September (optional); levies three mills instead of two. It provides that ten days notice be given of all meetings at large places by newspaper advertisement; that when there are more than 500 voters, elections shall be in the day, time at polls, the remaining business of the district follow one week after at a stated meeting; requires all vacancies by resignation or death in a board of directors to be immediately filled by election; provides that ten days after an election the clerk shall furnish the Superintendent the names of the directors. Other provisions and recommendations are of minor importance.

SPECIAL NOTES UPON INDIVIDUAL SCHOOLS.

District No. 5.—A strong desire exists in this district, on the part of many influential citizens for other school facilities. An alternative seems to be presented; either to divide the district, or build a substantial addition to the present school, and grade it. I have no hesitation in recommending the latter course as cheapest and best for all concerned. Division in suburban districts, will inevitably end in driving the better class of children to the city for their education. On the other hand, should this district and others similarly situated, advance their schools in grade, comfort and efficiency, a class of people will come in, or be retained, to the ultimate prosperity of the whole neighborhood.

No. 21. These remarks apply with even more force to this district. A desire is felt by the citizens of Stephens' Addition to have a separate school, and strong pressure is brought to bear upon this office for a division. I have deferred any action for the present, and would respectfully recommend at the annual meeting in East Portland, an understanding between the different parts of the district to this effect: that a tax, say of 5 mills, be levied, and Directors instructed to divide the sum so obtained equally, setting apart one half for the erection of a good district school in the vicinity south of the Asylum, the remainder to be expended in building and partly furnishing a graded school on the present site. Such a measure would dignify the town, hold the children to the east side, and encourage future settlements.

No. 27.—The public interest would be served by setting off a small strip of District No. 1, to this district, thus enabling settlers near the mill to have a good permanent school. It will be necessary to present a definite petition signed by a majority of voters to effect the change.

The following schools are now in session No. 7, 14, 17, 31, 1, 2, 21. Seven districts have maintained school nine months or over, and seven for six months. It would not require much effort, with the new tax, to hold six months school in all the districts reporting this year.

I observe with regret in some Districts a disposition to judge too harshly the action of a teacher; to accept and encourage fault-finding on the part of the children; and on the other hand often, a lack of tact on the part of teachers themselves, in explaining their methods, and adapting themselves, as far as is consistent with self respect to the wishes of the people. Above all, subjects of criticism or temporary irritation on either side, should not be talked of before the children themselves—for such a course ultimately destroys all sanctity of the relation between teacher and taught, and ends in the demoralization of the District. We earnestly commend to all Districts in these matters the virtues of prudence, forbearance and a judicial temper.

District No. 1—Portland. I would again urge upon this, our most important and influential District, the subjects referred to in my report of January 1st. Provision should be made for a careful supervision on the part of Principals, of their subordinates, and perhaps an additional teacher provided in each building, to enable them to spend part of their time in examining classes in directing the instruction of the different classes in their charge. The experiment was made for a few weeks in the north building, and with marked benefit to the whole school. The graded system either requires a city Superintendent's whole time, or such a supervision as indicated. If additional teachers cannot be afforded, the First Assistant might teach an hour each day in the Principal's room, (transferring the children of her charge for the time being,) thus enabling him to spend this time in other rooms. I also hope the Directory will mature a system of careful examinations, that may be put in force at the close of the present term. In connection with this, steps should be taken to thoroughly and carefully define the course of study and standard required in every Department. It would be well, if printed rules and regulations, upon all matters affecting the welfare of the school, were in the hands of every teacher, and perhaps of the parents.

In conclusion, we urge upon our citizens of every class the importance of the trust committed to us, in the education of children. The instruction received by a child is secondary in importance to the habits of self-control and thorough work, and the general discipline of character, which good teachers inspire by their own earnestness and excellence. We should not suffer ourselves to rest satisfied, until in every respect, inward and outward, our school system attains the full standard possible, as a factor in the highest civilization and well being of the world about us.

A THRILLING ADVENTURE.

HOW A LADY WAS SAVED IN A COLD COLONATION

It was I don t remember the precise year—but it was when I was about seventeen years old and when I lived in a New England village where I was born, and from which I had hardly ever been away

It was the day before Thanksgiving, the only holiday that New England knows much about, and about which the rest of the world knows so very little For three nights before the cold had been very severe for the time of the year and the newly formed ice on the pond was as smooth and clear as a looking glass What were we all to do the next day, the gladdest, merriest day of all the year Ride to church and eat the feast that had been so long in preparation? That was the question asked by my strong eamest older friend who had come from Boston to spend Thanksgiving

Shall of course I answered

But why not try the ice to night he asked

I could see no reason and so we bound on our skates and flew as if upon the glassy surface of the pond to the cove, about which were the piles of pine tree boughs Once there we conceived the idea of how grand it would be to skate back to the village collect together the women and girls, take suitable provisions for a picnic, place them all in sleighs and on hand sleds draw them to this place, and eat a supper on the rocks, amid the glare of the burning tree-tops We were not long in carrying out our plans, for almost every house had its sleigh and skates, and those that were destitute of either united with some of their neighbors An hour, and the little lake was covered by the merriest skating party that it had ever witnessed And then the supper the bonfire the songs, the merry making! I shudder to think of such boisterous sport, with an impending death so very near! The sport was over at length the apples eaten, the cider drunk, the songs sung, the stories told, and the once great flames among the resinous pine needles were now smouldering among the limbs or lingering in the stumps and roots It was nearly time to go And so the company was breaking up into little knots as we came

To all the sleigh and sleds together my strong friend shouted, the last to leave the spot The order from our leader was soon obeyed Each little vehicle was ranged from ten to twenty feet apart, according to the length of the ropes or loading hooks which we had and three or four skaters were stationed between them Then two much longer ropes were stretched from either side of the long lines, of which some twenty more skaters took hold With a shout and whoop such as Indians give when rushing to battle, we started on the ice The line, first straight or waving a little where the poor skaters were, soon took the form of a crescent, and, with a clamor of voices and the grating of skating irons, we sped over the ice

My strong friend and I were soon on one of the side ropes, and we held the nearest to the sleighs We had not proceeded far before I perceived that the ice was bending up in front of us, and I could plainly hear it crack above the noise of the skaters I spoke not a word, but looked intently into my companion s face I only thought that, so long as we, kept in motion as we were then doing, we might pass the terrible danger. But I knew very well if the true state of affairs was discovered, a panic would spread along the line, some skater would drop out, and then the sleighs and their precious burdens must sink to the bottom

I cannot forget the horror of that moment —a moment, that seemed an age I was faint myself, but I only shuddered lest some skater should fall. I could not speak for fear, but I almost feared lest the other voices should stop and the cracking of the ice should be heard by the women, who would be sure to scream My thoughts were on God, my eyes were fixed on the face of my friend I was was fairly drawn along up the curving ice, that seemed to rise higher before us every moment. Cold sweat was on my forehead, but I could not loosen my hand from the rope to wipe it off. My friend not ced that I was lagging—I, who was so expert a skater. His eyes caught mine, and by that sort of intuitive language that we sometimes have in time of great dangers, he became aware of our dreadful situation, heard the cracking of the ice, and saw it, felt it rising in front of us

What did the strong man do? Flee like a coward from the dangers he had brought us to, and escape to the land? Did the alarm seize him that had overpowered me? Far otherwise. Raising his voice so that it could be heard above the din of the skater and the merry voices of the women, he shouted

"All sing, so we can keep better step, all sing Coronation" And without lowering his voice, he sang

"All hail the power of Jesus' name
Let angels prostrate fall!
Bring forth the royal diadem
And crown Him Lord of all

The orders came so unexpectedly that few joined in singing the verse, but when he came to the next stanza almost all the voices were heard. I felt a sort of relief, when the soprano, alto, tenor and bass voices all struck the words.

"Crown Him, ye martyrs of our God
Who from his altar call"

but I feared the time when the bass should be left to carry a line alone.

There were but three or four bass voices in the whole company, but my friend was numbered among them. I saw that he husbanded his breath for this as a strong man saves his strength for some great effort. Nevertheless, I could hear, alternating with the musical words

'Extol the stem of Jesse s rod'

the crack, crack, crack-crack-crack crack of the brittle shell that was between us and eternity It was a wonderous relief when four parts instead of one, and a hundred voices instead of four, took the words which seemed like an anthem of praise,

'Extol the stem of Jesse s rid,
And crown him Lord of all!"

We were now approaching the middle of the lake, where the water was the deepest, so deep that no line in the village could reach the bottom, and where the ice must be the thinnest, because it is the last to freeze there I knew this but I felt that now we were going with such rapidity, there was no break in the song. I singled out a tree upon the shore we were trying to make, and calculated than at the rate they were singing, there were verses enough to last until we reached it. I feared lest the leader might omit a verse, as was sometimes done in church, and there might be left a space over which we might pass in silence, or rather in a silence made dreadful by the cracking of the ice

I had no cause There was indeed that awful crack-crack-crack of the ice distinctly heard during the singing of each line of every stanza of the hymn, but it was either that I had become used to it or that it was indeed more faint than it was before, that it failed to affect me as at first So, too, there were little breadths of ice to be passed over, after the singers had closed the verse

'Let every kindred, every tribe
On this terrestrial ball,
To Him all majesty ascribe,
And crown Him Lord of all'

But our momentum was then such that I knew we could reach the shore in safety, which we soon did.

On reaching it there was the same boisterous noise that marked our starting, such one untying his own sled or sleigh, and joining the little party with which he came But of the peril through which they had passed, the danger from which they had been rescued, not one had the slightest intimation For my friend and myself—the only ones who were aware of our wonderful deliverance—we were left alone And there, on that rocky beach, with stars above us, we sank upon our knees, our arms entwining each other s necks It was a silent prayer we offered, an offering of thanks to the "Giver of every good and perfect gift" Not for us alone, but for all those who had been brought out of peril Then we rose hand in hand and walked to our homes

The next day was Thanksgiving we entered into no boisterous mirth We kept our secret to ourselves that day but during all the time since then we have not mentioned the affair to each other But once long after this, when we were in the church together, and the preachers gave out "Coronation," I noticed that he did not sing, but grasped my hands in his while the tears flowed from his eyes as though he were a child.

The Epizooty reached Helena, M. T. on the 15th ult. The mercury up there reached fifteen below zero on the same day.

David Crockett

HIS TRUE CHARACTER AS DIFFERENCED FROM THE POPULAR IDEA OF HIM

Nearly forty years ago the late David Crockett visited New York and by invitation of the merchants of that city went to the new Merchant's Exchange on Wall street, then recently built to give them a talk

The national fame he had acquired was owing to a book published of what purported to be his eccentricities to which we will presently recur It was first his local reputation as a humorist then it became habitual to ascribe to Davy in the Tennessee papers every conceit which wanted currency It was every conceit of exaction by which the world had known him a year or two when he was elected to Congress Coming on to New York and having no pretext for declining the invitation of the merchants he accepted it and one fine spring forenoon found himself in the portico of the Exchange, with several thousand curiously suckers, of the mercantile stripe close around him Mr Crockett was completely bewildered and without the self-command required to fulfill the remainder of his convenient, for he could not and did not speak

His appearance denoted an overpowering bashfulness and the character of the face was as free of any signs of human as a Congressman in our day of holding, Mobtter Pumdity was the striking characteristic of the high reclaimed by the expression of the mouth when under control That David Crockett did however possess traits of character out of keeping with these inductions we all know from his memorable death three years afterward

The peculiar eminence he then enjoyed and which led to the compliment we relate arose from the then recent publication of the book mentioned, entitled 'Sketches and Incontricities of David Crockett' It was full of rare humor and enjoyed great popularity which at that time was in full blast The book probably never reached a second edition, and is long out of print, owing to the public declaimer of Mr Crockett which followed in the New York dailies, the misadventure of the meeting It never transpired who was the author of the book, which was copy righted by its publisher

The high sensibility of Crockett impelled him to denounce the book He declared it wholly without authenticity, and denied all knowledge of its source In doing this he was not unaware of what he was throwing away, not unmindful of the fame he had acquired by it, but he spurned with indignation the thought, on the one hand, of advancing himself by such means, and on the other of permitting so gross an imposition on the public

The same spirit which constrained him thus to discard a simulated fame, led him to volunteer in the cause of Texan independence which he did soon after He was one of the brave command of the intrepid Travis, which garrisoned Fort Alamo, and was put to the sword at its conquest, in 1836 The friends of freedom throughout the civilized world honor their memories —New Orleans Times

Miss Schneider, of Liverpool, England, has recovered $125 000 damages from a cousin of the Established Church for breach of promise of marriage. This little sum of $125,000,000 will make her happy for a week or two, but after it has been expended for false hair and other frippery, how much more consoling a nice man like the poor curate would have been

623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco: Established in 1854 for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Vitiated Blood successfully treated.

DR GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female are there who have suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken down constitutions disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life In this horrid situation those unde suffer until death closes the scene Let parents, guardians, friends attend to those who are suffering with any of these incipient life-destroying maladies—see that they are cured for and cured in form to be put into the world immediately by DR GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate case, without mercury or any injurious drugs It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who treat all alike, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places Be sure to be careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse This solitary vice, so destructive to health, so much practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rumbling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintance, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, bad breath, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure Dr G will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks

MARRIED MEN.

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fear
